Yummy pizzas are a thing of the past, what with every continental eatery all over the city dishing out their own versions of the pizza, the authenticity and effort that goes into a good pizza seems to have been forgotten.

Pizza Hut has however come out with a new range of garlic themed pizzas, called quite aptly, Ring O' Garlic. I got to taste a few of these yummy pizzas at their Airport Road eatery and I must say they are nothing short of a well-cooked gastronomical delight. The pizzas are moderately priced if you're used to Pizza Hut's price range, and come in several non-veg and veg options. I tasted the Euro' Chicken, and Chicken O' Supreme from the non-veg range and was quite pleased with the fragrant delectable aroma and taste of parsley. The veg option that I tried out was interesting too, called Paneer El RanchO', it is filled with cajun spiced paneer, black olives, corn, capsicum and onion—a perfect combination for the veg at heart.

The service as always was good, and the ambience, well; do pizza hang-outs get classier than pizza hut? Surely the best option for a quick lunch wherever you are, and easy on the pocket when you have good pizza on mind. Don't forget to wash down those pizzas with the refreshing ice teas included in the menu. So, ring that bell, and bring in the good times.

Buon Appetito!
